

Vietnam Travel Guide – Discover the Soul of Southeast Asia

Vietnam is not just a place you visit — it's a country you feel. From the lantern-lit alleys of Hoi An to the emerald waters of Ha Long Bay, from the misty rice terraces of Sapa to the golden beaches of Phu Quoc, every corner tells a story waiting to be lived.

31 Best Time to Visit Vietnam

Vietnam's long shape means varying climates across regions. Here's the seasonal guide:

- North (Hanoi, Ha Long Bay, Sapa, Ninh Binh): October–April – cool, dry weather
- Central (Hue, Da Nang, Hoi An): February–August – sunshine & festivals
- South (Ho Chi Minh City, Mekong Delta, Phu Quoc): November–April – tropical beach season

 Tip: March–April and October–November are ideal to experience both north and south.

Must-Visit Destinations

Hanoi – The Heartbeat of the North

French colonial charm, buzzing Old Quarter, Hoàn Kiếm Lake, and street food culture — Hanoi is Vietnam's soulful capital.

Ha Long Bay – Nature's Masterpiece

Emerald waters, limestone cliffs, and hidden caves. Best explored via overnight cruise or kayak under the stars.

Sapa – Terraced Beauty in the Mountains

Trek through golden rice terraces and colorful hill-tribe villages, or conquer Fansipan, Vietnam's tallest peak.

Ninh Binh – Ha Long Bay on Land

Boat rides through Tam Coc's rice fields and caves, plus the stunning Mua Cave viewpoint.

Hue – Imperial Splendor

Discover the Imperial City, royal tombs, and pagodas along the Perfume River.

Da Nang – Beaches & Modern Marvels

Relax on My Khe Beach, visit Marble Mountains, and walk the Golden Bridge held by giant stone hands.

Hoi An – The Lantern Town

UNESCO-protected old town, tailor shops, riverside dining, and monthly lantern festivals.

Ho Chi Minh City – The Pulse of the South

Historic landmarks, Cu Chi Tunnels, café culture, and a nightlife that never sleeps.

Mekong Delta – Life on the Water

Floating markets, lush orchards, and boat cruises through winding canals.

Phu Quoc – Island Paradise

Pristine beaches, coral reefs, pepper farms, and Phu Quoc National Park. Perfect for leisure & honeymoon escapes.
